

How to feel more confident about exams

Replacing negative beliefs with positive beliefs:

Find a positive, realistic belief that can replace the negative belief. For instance, if your negative belief is 'I am rubbish at maths' a positive, realistic alternative could be: 'Even if I will never be the best at maths, I will do better if I have a revision plan and stick to it'.

The key things to remember are that:

1. if you suffer from anxiety, replacing negative beliefs can help
2. some people find it helpful to keep a record of their beliefs
3. you can become a more confident person with a 'can do' attitude

Revision

For many students, starting revision is the biggest hurdle to overcome.

1. Create a plan: break down everything you need to revise into small topics and just revise one topic at a time. By creating a plan you are taking control
2. Set targets: identify when you are going to revise each topic. Give yourself a time limit for when to complete each topic
3. Check progress: check your progress and set yourself a new time limit if necessary. Once you've met a target, set yourself a new one

The key things to remember are that:

1. targets should be achievable and manageable
2. targets must be short-term and include a time-limit
3. review your targets, and when complete, set new ones
4. it is important to test yourself to see if your revision is effective

Stress is not necessarily a bad thing

People react to stress in different ways. Stress can be a great motivator for some students, giving them the 'get up and go' that they need to succeed. Other students are indifferent to stress; they can float along without getting affected by stress in a good or bad way. Stress can be a bad thing for some students, when exam pressures become overwhelming.

The key things to remember are that:

1. stress is nothing to be scared of
2. anxiety is not inevitable
3. you can learn how to cope more effectively
4. You are in control

Deep breathing

When you become anxious your breathing becomes shallow and fast. Breathing slowly and deeply will help you calm down and feel in control.

How do I do it?

1. Sit comfortably with a straight back.
2. Place your left hand on your chest, and right hand below it, on your diaphragm.
3. Inhale deeply through your nose for 5 seconds.
4. Hold your breath for 2 seconds.
5. Exhale slowly through your mouth.
6. Feel the expansion in your diaphragm
7. Repeat for 1 or 2 minutes until you feel calm.
